

CommSecure Appoints Andrew Todd to Lead Software Team

Sydney, 13 March 2007 - CommSecure Limited (ASX:CMS), a leading provider of secure e-commerce solutions for corporate, government and financial institutions, today announced the appointment of Andrew Todd as Software Services Manager.

This strategic appointment includes responsibility for CommSecure's entire software service function, with Mr Todd charged with leading and managing the team of software engineers engaged in application development, implementation and maintenance.

As Software Services Manager, Mr Todd has bottom line responsibility for the quality and timeliness of the solutions and services CommSecure provides to its clients, driving technology advances while ensuring the commercial expediency and technical competence of its offerings.

CommSecure's chief executive officer, Peter Townsley, said "This position is fundamental to CommSecure's continued market success and Mr Todd was chosen for his extensive experience and proven track record as a lead software architect and project manager, both in Australia and the UK".

"We are delighted to have secured Andrew Todd for this role and look forward to him making a significant contribution to CommSecure's future success. We are confident that Andrew has the knowledge, skills and vision to lead our Software Services team as we continue to pursue an aggressive growth strategy" he said.

Mr Todd joins CommSecure from Oakton Limited, where he held management roles in development, maintenance and project costing. He has also held senior positions with UK-based Javelin Group, MPower Systems, OzEmail and Oracle Corporation (UK and Australia).
